

IS ALLISON TO SUFFER DEFEAT?

Situation In Iowa Is One That Puzzles The Astute Politicians Of The Country.

FAILURE AT REELECTION HINTED

Has Long Been In The United States Senate-Governor
Cummins His Political Enemy-Last Stages Of Fight Approach.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Don Moline, Iowa, Dec. 30.—A battle royal between political giants is destined to make Iowa a republican arena of international prominence during the year to come. The die has been cast, the challenge has been taken and accepted. The legions are in battle array, the chieftains are in shield and buckler. The scrap is on.

Governor Albert Cummins is one of the most famous, if not the most famous, of all existing governors of states in this Union. He has figured prominently time and again in the republican news and has even been prominently mentioned as a presidential possibility. Back in the days when Leslie M. Shaw was secretary of the United States treasury and was killed as Iowa's favorite son for the republican presidency, even then Governor Cummins' star was in the ascendency and even then his presidential boom cast shadows across the horizon of Shaw.

But the line of battle has shifted. It is no longer Shaw and Cummins, both presidential possibilities and aspirants, but it is Allison and Cummins, with an United States senatorship as the coveted prize.

As Cummins is prominent and important among the governors of America's commonwealths, so also is William B. Allison prominent in the upper house of congress. He is the mentor of the senate, he is a school master of republican party success. He is a statesman of splendid scope and abilities. He is a favorite among his Washington associates and beloved of his native state.

Governor Cummins has just issued formal announcement of his candidacy for the senate to succeed Allison. It has been understood for some time the governor wished his career into the ring. Now no doubt exists. A public statement comes from the Iowa state house settling the matter beyond all doubt. The statement is elicited by the publication of correspondence purporting to show Cummins' agreement not to oppose Allison for reelection. The governor now positively denies ever having made a pledge to Allison or his friends. He utterly repudiates the report of a conversation to that effect and declares that the question of his good faith will have to be submitted to the people for their decision along with the senatorship at the primary election next June. This is the conclusion of Cummins' declaration of war. "My enemies announce the proposition that I cannot, with honor, be a candidate. I accept the issue and it shall be submitted to the republican voters of Iowa. I am quite willing to have them say who is guilty of bad faith. This is not the first time my motives have been maligned and my words distorted, and it will probably not be the last time, for my opponents are both persistent and resourceful. I have learned that the to-morrow is not very destructive in political warfare, and I am not much disturbed by the opening strains of the concert. To my friends I beg to send this message. I am fighting on for the same things in the same way and with the same confidence as in former years. The outcome is with the people."

While Cummins thus takes the offensive and aggressively flouts his battle banner to the breeze it is interesting to turn to the other side of the equation and inspect the public record of the man whom Cummins will endeavor to unseat. Senator Allison was born March 2, 1823, and thus approaches his seventy-ninth birthday. He commenced his congressional career back in the thirty-eighth congress. He served in the lower house at Washington for four terms and was elected to the United States senate for the term beginning March 4, 1875. Senator Allison will thus have completed 35 years of experience in the senate on the fourth day of next March. He is the oldest member of the upper house of congress in years and experience.

SWALLOWED NEEDLES TAFT IS GUEST OF TO END HER LIFE HONOR IN BOSTON

Mrs. Mollie Desmond Dies After All
But a Dozen Needles Were Extracted.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, Dec. 30.—Mrs. Mollie Desmond who attempted to commit suicide eighteen months ago by swallowing a package of 141 needles died today after the physicians had made twenty-five surgical operations upon her and had removed all but a dozen of the needles. Domestic troubles induced Mrs. Desmond to try this extraordinary method of suicide.

Will Speak at the Annual Banquet of the Boston Merchants' Association.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—Secretary of War Taft is in Boston to be the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Boston Merchants' association at the Hotel Somerset tonight and to deliver the first public address he has made since his return from his journey around the world. The affair gives promise of being one of the most notable in the history of the Boston Merchants' association. While Secretary Taft's address will have no bearing on his candidacy for the republican presidential nomination, he is expected to discuss the policy of the present administration with regard to the Philippines and other matters of interest to the far east.

Following the association's custom at its annual banquets to present one speaker from the South, Hon. Swager Buckley representative in congress from Kentucky, will be the second speaker.

TEACHERS OF SOUTH CAROLINA MEET

Annual State Educational Meeting Is Opened at Columbia, South Carolina, Today.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Columbia, S. C., Dec. 30.—The state educational gatherings which it is customary to hold during the holiday week opened in this city today with an attendance larger and more representative than ever before. The most important of the meetings is that of the South Carolina Teachers' association, which was formally opened with a reception at Wright's hotel this afternoon. This meeting will be in session two days, during which time there will be addresses by noted educators of several states in addition to the routine business and discussions. Other bodies in session are the City Superintendents' association, the County Superintendents' association and the South Carolina School Improvement association. Interesting and instructive programs have been arranged for each of the meetings.

PLAN TO DRAIN THE JERSEY MEADOWS

Meeting Held to Discuss Plans for Reclaiming Jersey Meadows and to Increase Waterfront.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Trenton, N. J., Dec. 30.—On the initiative of the New Jersey delegates who attended the recent convention of the National Drainage association at Baltimore, a meeting of county and municipal officials was held here today to discuss plans for the reclamation of the so-called Jersey meadows. It is estimated that with the construction of two necessary dikes and canals land amounting to millions of dollars in value could be reclaimed for commercial purposes, including a great increase in the present available waterfront area on the New Jersey side of the North river and bay opposite New York city.

William G. Dyer, an engineer on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road who has been ill for ten days with the grip at his home in Washington street, is rapidly improving.

BIG DIVIDENDS TO BE SOON RECEIVED

End of the Year Disbursements by Big Companies Reaches Favorable Amount.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Dec. 30.—It is estimated that bondholders will receive nearly $200,000,000 within the next day or two, the sum representing the end of the year interest and dividend disbursements of the great corporations. Statistics show that more money will be paid out to holders of stocks and bonds this end of the year than ever before. About $105,000,000 is being paid out to holders of bonds, while the dividend paying stocks will distribute $72,000,000.

The fact that copper companies have been forced to cut down their dividends and many railroads and industrial concerns have been forced to either pay in scrip or reduce their dividends has not changed the general fact of dividend and interest payments. The reason for this state of affairs is due to the larger capitalizations and bonded obligations, all of which have been floated this year or in the latter part of 1906.

Head over shoulders of industrial corporations in the matter of end of the year coupon payments, the United States Steel corporation towers. It will pay out this week $1,641,000. The Consolidated Gas company is second, with $1,379,000. The American Telephone and Telegraph company will distribute $1,385,000. In the list of dividend payers, the Union Pacific disbursements lead with a total of $1,387,250, and Southern Pacific is second, with payments of $1,487,000.

The Union Pacific will pay for its bonds $2,500,000, the Great Northern $3,122,000 and the Southern Pacific nearly $2,000,000. Another of the great bond coupon payers is the St. Louis and San Francisco, which will pay $2,919,000 more the Canadian Pacific the nearly $2,000,000 to the holders of the coupons.

TAFT STATES THAT IT WILL BE YEARS

Big War Secretary Explains to Ministers in Boston Matters in the Philippines.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—Secretary Taft in an address before the Congressional ministers here today said: "That while the people of the Philippines are progressing politically, educationally and sanitarly, all of which tended toward ultimate self-government, they are not ready yet." He spent considerable time in refuting the argument of the so-called anti-imperialists, the majority of whose advocates he seemed to think belonged in Boston. He said with only seven per cent of the inhabitants of the Philippines sufficiently educated to understand self-government, it would be dangerous to give the island over at this time. He placed the ultimate self-government at not earlier than a generation or perhaps two of them. Taft was warmly greeted by his audience and several leading divines, who spoke highly and referred to his political future and expressed a hope that he might become president.

GOVERNOR SPARKS CALLS EXTRA SESSION TODAY

Government Troops Will Remain At Goldfield Until The Three Weeks Are Over.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—Governor Sparks of Nevada today wired President Roosevelt he was preparing a proclamation calling the legislature of Nevada to an extra session. According to the President's last communication to the governor troops will now be ordered to remain at Goldfield for a period of three weeks.

PAPKE-KELLY FIGHT BOOKED FOR TONIGHT

Much Interest In Milwaukee Over Fight Which Is To Be Fought Off Before Badger Athletic Club.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30.—The sporting public hereabouts is intensely interested over the big fight between "Bill" Papke and Hugo Kelly before the Badger Athletic club.
There have been many important pugilistic encounters held in the Cream City during the past few years, but none has ever aroused more public interest than the battle to be fought off tonight. The interest in the fight is due in large measure to the fact that the result will have an important bearing on the middleweight championship question. Stanley Ketchell, the crack young fighter who recently defeated Joe Thomas for the third time, will undoubtedly be matched to fight the winner of tonight's contest.

The articles of agreement call for ten rounds, the men will fight in at least 161 pounds at 7 o'clock this afternoon. The men will fight for 50 per cent of the gross receipts, the winner to receive 75 per cent of the purse and the loser 25 per cent. Ever since the match was made some weeks ago both fighters have been training diligently with the result that both appear to be in superb condition and fit to make the fight of their lives.
Many out-of-town sporting men are expected here from Chicago and other points to witness the go. A delegation from Papke's home town of Spring Valley will be on hand ready to wager any part of $1,500 on their bol.

CANADIAN PACIFIC TO INCREASE STOCK

Stockholders of Canadian Pacific Railway Meet to Sanction Increase of Stock.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Montreal, Que., Dec. 30.—Stockholders of the Canadian Pacific railway met in special session here today for the purpose of sanctioning the issue of capital stock to the amount of $28,320,000, in such sums and at such terms as the directors may think proper. This issue will complete the authorized capital stock of the company to $150,000,000, of which $121,680,000 has already been issued.
The authorization of the additional issue at the present time, it is officially explained, is in keeping with the policy of the road to its stockholders the right to participate in new stock upon terms which offer the equivalent of an extra dividend.
Regarding the purpose to which the proceeds of the new stock are likely to be put, it is said that probably part of the new funds will be used in connection with the plan which has been discussed to connect the Canadian Pacific lines with Seattle by a line directly controlled by that system. The Canadian Pacific already controls the Spokane International and the construction of a line to Seattle would bring it still more closely into competition with the ILL lines in the northwest.

VERDICT STANDS IN THE PFISTER CASE

Judge Hastings Refuses to Alter His Verdict in the $15,000 Damage Assessed.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30.—Judge Samuel J. Hastings has refused to set aside the $15,000 verdict of damages obtained by Charles F. Pfister against the Milwaukee Free Press and Harry H. Myrick for libel. The action for a new trial and order for judgment on the verdict was refused from the Green Bay judge by Clerk of Court Fred Coris today. Judge Hastings in his decision disallows with a telegram thirteen of the assertions of errors made by the defendants in the motion for a new trial.
He says simply that he finds no error in any of these judgments.

TWO HUSBANDS
FIGHT FOR WIFE

GIRL ARRESTED HERE ON BIG-AMY CHARGE IN COURT.

SAD MATRIMONIAL TANGLE

Was Working in Janesville. Home, Waiting for Husband Number One to Finish State Prison Sentence.

When Sheriff Welch of Wood county visited Janesville last week and arrested a domestic employed at T.
E. Welch's residence on the charge of bigamy details of her actions were given in the Gazette. While here the woman was known as Miss Phillips and told of a mother being dead and she alone, when in reality her name was Mrs. George Payne and her husband a prosperous businessman of Grand Rapids. Before marrying Mr.
Payne she had been known as Violet Lavin and was supposed to have been an unmarried woman. It appears her first husband was named Lavin and he was serving a long term in state's prison, which will be completed in January. When arraigned in court at Grand Rapids the story came out in detail, showing a sorry chapter.

It is said that Mrs. Lavin, or Payne, who was formerly Violet De Camp, was married to husband No. 1 when she was only 14 years of age, he being a year older. Shortly after this "child marriage" Lavin deserted his wife in Chicago, and drifted to Wisconsin. He was not long in this state when he was arrested and sent to Waupun for twenty years on a serious charge.

Married Again
In the meantime his wife went to Grand Rapids, where she met George Payne and later married him without going through the formality of a divorce proceeding from her former husband. A sister of the former husband told Mrs. Payne that her first marriage was null on account of her youth, and on this slim advice she married husband No. 2.

Wrote to Her
It seems that Lavin had of her marrying Payne, and he managed to communicate with her, and told her that she was still his wife. An investigation followed and it proved to be true, so in September last Mrs.
Payne moved and procured a divorce from husband No. 1.

Leaves Husband
The whole affair caused so much talk and trouble in the Payne family that a few weeks ago Mrs. Payne decided to leave husband No. 2 and go to see No. 1, who is about to be released from Waupun. When she saw No. 1 their old difference was patched up, and it was decided that the wife should go to Janesville, seek employment there and wait for her first husband to be released from state prison.

Swore Out Warrant
The actions of his supposed wife so weighed on the mind of Mr. Payne that he swore out a warrant for her arrest on the charge of bigamy, and when the sheriff brought the wife back to Grand Rapids Payne tried to overcome her infatuation for Lavin, but failed.

Is Bound Over
At her hearing Saturday she was bound over to the spring term of the circuit court to stand trial, under $200 bail. Payne felt so sorry for the woman that he immediately furnished the necessary bonds for her appearance next spring, so that she would not have to stay in jail in the meantime.

Means to Leave Mrs. Payne declares that as soon as she can pay off husband No. 2, and after her trial, she will join husband
No. 1, who in the meantime expects to be released from the penitentiary.
Payne says that rather than have his supposed wife join her first husband he will prosecute the charge of bigamy to the end that the wife of dual husbands may be sent to the penitentiary.

JUDGE CASSODAY
DIED LAST NIGHT

FAILED TO RALLY FROM OPERA-TION PERFORMED LAST WEEK.

CHIEF JUSTICE OF STATE

Practiced Law in Janesville for Twenty-three Years—Has Been on the Bench Since 1881.

Word was received this morning announcing the death of Chief Justice John H. Cassoday of the state supreme court during the night. Judge Cassoday was operated on for gall-stones some ten days ago and appeared to be improving, but the end came with unexpected suddenness and he passed to the world beyond during the night.

Born in York State
John H. Cassoday was born in Herliford county, New York state, on July 7, 1830. His early studies were pursued in the common schools, at the academies in Wellsboro and Knoxville, Pa., and two years at the Alfred academy, where he graduated.
He spent one year at the Michigan university and then attended the Albany law school; afterward reading in a law office in Wellsboro, Pa. In 1881 Beloit college conferred a degree of LL.D. and in 1905 the University of Wisconsin conferred a similar degree.

Came to Janesville
In 1857 Judge Cassoday came to Janesville and studied in the law office of Judge Conger, remaining with him until 1868, when he entered the office of Bennett, Cassoday & Gibbs, which continued for seven years. He then practiced alone for two years and then for five years was associated in the firm of Cassoday, Merrill & Dixon. Mr. Merrill and Mr. Dixon leaving the firm in 1873, Edwin Cassoday was admitted and until Judge Cassoday's appointment to the supreme court in 1880 the firm name was Cassoday & Carpenter.

Married Here
Mr. Cassoday was married in 1859 to Miss Mary Spaulding, daughter of the late Joseph Spaulding. Mrs. Cassoday died five years ago and four daughters, Mrs. William Jacobs of Madison, Mrs. (Wheeler) of South Dakota, Mrs. Carl Johnson of Madison, and a son, Eldon Cassoday, an attorney in Chicago, survive him. The interment will be in Madison, probably on Wednesday next.

Strong Republican
In politics Judge Cassoday was a Republican with pronounced views.
He began his political career as a camp orator while in college and after coming to Janesville was twice elected member of the state legislature. Once in 1865 and again in 1877 when he was chosen as speaker. He was a delegate to the national republican convention at Baltimore that nominated President Lincoln in 1864 and also to the convention of 1880 in Chicago when Garfield was nominated.

Called to Bench
In 1880, Nov. 11, he was appointed by Gov. William E. Smith, as associate justice of the supreme court, a vacancy having been caused by the promotion of Associate Justice Cole to the chief justiceship to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Chief Justice Edward G. Ryan. He was elected associate justice in April, 1881, and again in April, 1889, and again in 1899, and was a professor in the College of Law, University of Wisconsin, lecturing on constitutional law. He is the author of "Cassoday on Wills," a law textbook published in 1893. He became chief justice upon the death of Justice Orton in July, 1895, by virtue of his seniority in service, and has continued such ever since.

RAILROADS GETTING READY FOR CHANGE

Are Making Changes in Number of Operators—New Law as to Eight-Hour Shifts Goes into Effect the First.

Both railroads are making preparations to comply with the new law as to eight-hour shifts for telegraph operators which goes into effect on the first of January. In some places men are being taken off and no operator will be at the station in the future while in others extra men will be put on. Orders have been received for the Mineral Point division of the St.
Paul road which will do away with five stations and make places for eleven now operators. However, Jada, South Wayne, and Belmont will be discontinued as telegraph stations, and new men will be put on at the more important stations where the work is now done by one man. In the local St. Paul office there will be three tricks of eight hours each.

The orders for the Wisconsin division of the North-Western road have not yet been received, but there will be three eight-hour tricks in the passenger station and three at the YD tower. On the northern Wisconsin division several stations will no longer have operators. One operator will be taken off at Milton Junction, W.
Atkinson and Jefferson, leaving only one man at each of these stations who will work eight hours in the middle of the day. The rest of the time there will be no operator at the station. After eleven p. m. trains will block from here to Jefferson Junction and from Jefferson to Fond du Lac.

Raw Milk Unwholesome.

Nathan Straus sends a message to American mothers to the effect that raw milk is not good for children, the scientific men of the world having agreed upon the fact. Milk should be pasteurized and the mother can do this herself in her own kitchen. The International congress at Brussels warned against raw milk, because of the danger from tuberculosis. It is not the poor alone who need instruction upon the subject, as many of the babies of the rich suffer from the effects of raw milk, but Americans are said to know more on the subject than people of other countries.

GIRL DANCED WITH SKELETON.

San Francisco Mail Must Be Credited with Some Nerve.

This is a story of something that was expected to happen and did not. There was once a skeleton at the Hopkins Academy of Art supposed to be that of a celebrated French dancing master whose flock of usefulness was now confined to the anatomy room, where he was daily observed by a boy of girl students. The dancing master was mounted on a base with wheels for the convenience of locomotion. When one of the customary dances was held a number of girls wandered into the anatomy room between the numbers and began to trifle with the old arse, staturary and other objects. The skeleton of the old dancing master was dragged into the middle of the room just as the band struck up a waltz. The floor was polished, and the wheels rolled over it with marvelous ease. An idea suddenly occurred to the youngest and prettiest of the girls, and she acted upon it. "It is long since monsieur has had the pleasure of a dance," she said, smiling bewitchingly. "Will he dance with me?" Seizing her card she wrote, "Monsieur the Skeleton" upon it. Then uncurling the bony digits with her own warm fingers she sped away with the skeleton over the polished floor. "I dance with death," she cried, and laughed gaily as she whirled. This is where something should have happened, but nothing did. The girls grow nervous and dragged her from the room. The old dancing master remained alone in the middle of the floor, and the waltz swung on.—San Francisco Call.

A Discouraged Digger.

"I see they say that when a diamond passes a certain size it is worth no more than a smaller one." "How's that?" "If it's too large it isn't marketable. Nobody wants to wear a diamond as bulky as a glass door knob." "Is that so? Then it must be awfully discouraging for a man to dig up a sparkler as big as a football."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Dec. 30, 1867.—Theatrical.—On Wednesday evening, January 1st, a theatrical performance will open at Luppina Hall, at which Miss Helen Western and Mr. J. A. Horne will make their first appearance in this city, supported by a full company.

Watch Meeting.—The colored society of this city have obtained the use of the Congregational church for a watch meeting tomorrow night. It will be presided over by Rev. Mr. Dawson commencing at 9 o'clock. Just previous to the commencement of the religious exercises there will be a wedding in the church.

Personal.—Miss Julia Nowell, who sailed for Holy Land on June last with the Quaker City excursionists, returned to her home in this city on Saturday evening. The charming series of letters which she sent to the Gazette during her absence, were highly appreciated by our readers, and won favorable comment from the press of this and other states. Her wide circle of acquaintances will be glad to know that she returns to her friends in excellent health and spirits.

General Howard thinks Congress will have to provide relief for the destitute in the South. A proposition is made to have a government loan of $25,000,000 or $20,000,000 at six per cent secured by a lien on property and crops. General Howard does not approve of this but favors a distribution of food, the last to be secured by a lien on crops.

Foreign Orders For American Arms.—The Russian government has made a contract with the Colt Patent Fire Arms Company, of Hartford, for the manufacture of 20,000 Berdan rifles; the contract to be filled in eighteen months. One hundred Gatling revolving cannon have also been ordered by the Russian government to be built by the Colt company, and the Russians are likewise to have some built.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 28.—George Coburn, one of the crew of the Bonito, wrecked on the 4th instant, near Mackinac, arrived here yesterday. Coburn, in company with eight others of the crew, started from Mackinac on foot for Chicago, and the cold was so intense that it rendered their going very hazardous. Two of their companions who took another route have undoubtedly perished. Their names are Reynolds and Collins.

GEORGIA BECOMES "DRY" ON NEW YEAR.

FIRST SOUTHERN STATE TO GO IN PROHIBITION COLUMN.

LAW WILL BE ENFORCED

Property Values Involved Are About $5,000,000—Tax Rate May Be Increased—What Gov. Smith Says.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 30.—With the advent of the new year the law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, passed by the last session of the legislature, becomes effective, making Georgia the first of the southern states to be placed in the prohibition column.

The law is very drastic in its prohibition and forbids the keeping or giving away of liquors in public places and imposes a tax of $500 on clubs whose members are allowed to keep drinks of an intoxicating nature in their individual lockers.

Notwithstanding the passage of the law, there is some agitation to have it declared unconstitutional. This action may be brought in the United States courts in the course of the next month.

Ten Thousand to Lose Jobs.

It is claimed that Atlanta alone will lose in license taxes $135,612 and that the property values of saloons and breweries here which will go out of business on January 1 is from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. For the rest of the state the property values involved are about $5,000,000. It is estimated that 10,000 persons will lose their employment when January 1 rings its bell on the sale of intoxicating liquors.

That the prohibition law will be enforced there is no question. This is not the country of speak easy, and when the police have their laws they enforce them to the limit. Gov. Smith and the city officials have been frank in their statements that they intend to enforce the law.

Many Clubs May Be "Dry."

Many of the more prominent clubs have decided that they will go one better than the law and prohibit the keeping of liquor within their doors. The constitutional law of Georgia in its provision for school maintenance is very specific, according to one Atlanta lawyer. The question now arises where the funds for the maintenance of the public schools will come from, and it is said that a considerable increase in the tax rate may result.

What the Governor Says.

Gov. Hoke Smith made this statement Sunday night: "There is nothing in the effort to attack the prohibition law on account of the provision of the constitution appropriating special liquor taxes to school purposes. The constitution authorizes but does not require a special liquor tax."

"The properties which quit the liquor business are not lost. The breweries are prepared to manufacture beer and soft drinks. With these they can pay a fair profit on their investments. There is plenty of work in Georgia for those who go out of the liquor business and plenty of work for all of the time of those who have wasted half their time through the use of liquor."

Steamer Stops for Operation.

New York, Dec. 30.—When Christmas eve festivities were at their height on board the steamer Panama, in Sunday from Mediterranean ports, the Concord liner was brought to stop in order that the ship's surgeon might have the most favorable condition under which to perform an operation for appendicitis. The steamer lay to for one hour while the delicate cutting and stitching was done. The patient, a man passenger, is recovering.

Cloaks Have the Stage Today

We cannot make a long story out of the cloak subject, for the simple reason that we are not extra long on cloaks. However, the cloaks that we do show are good ones and we have a very fair assortment of colors and sizes. In the "Bostwick" garments quality and workmanship appeal to the most critical buyers. Every cloak that we offer is this season's style, which we show in tight-fitting, semi-fitting and loose garments. Of course, at this time prices must be attractive to induce people to buy. A woman does not have to be a judge of values to see that the prices we are making for the very best garments are unusually low. Whether it is a cloak for a woman, miss or child that one wants, it will pay to call and see THE BIG STORE'S showing before letting go of your good money.

Ready-to-Wear Suits

Our stock is gradually growing less under the hammer at cut prices, but the assortment we show still comprises some beautiful black broadcloth suits, as well as plain colors and fancy mixtures. It is surely a good time to buy a good suit for little money. It is simply a question of not having had a few weeks' extra wear if one buys now. There is plenty of time left to wear a suit. We are not as rushed in the alteration department as we were and can make any changes while you wait almost.

While our stock is in as good condition as it is today it is an opportunity to buy a cloak or suit at a saving of $5.00 to $12.00 over former prices. Our time is yours when you get ready to look at our stock. We cannot emphasize too strongly not to put off coming in if interested.

We have not dwelt on prices, you will notice, but anyway people can judge more about the bargains they are getting when they call and learn our prices than by columns of figures.

Refuting a Claim.

An Oregon girl traveled 4,000 miles holding an ex team for the purpose of marrying a minister. Yet ministers' claims are not appreciated.—N. Y. American.

Attending to Business.

"You say the officer arrested you while you were quietly minding your own business?" "Yes, your worship. He caught me suddenly by the coat collar and threatened to strike me with his truncheon unless I accompanied him to the station." "You were quietly attending to your business; making no noise or disturbance of any kind?" "None whatever." "It seems very strange. What is your business?" "He's a burglar, your worship," said the constable.—London Globe.

No Engagement Rings.

Girls in Denmark never experience the pleasure of receiving a diamond engagement ring. They are presented with a plain gold band, which is worn on the third finger of the left hand. On the wedding day the bridegroom changes the ring to the right third finger, which is the marriage finger in that country.

His "Holler" Tooth.

"This morning an Italian came into my store and asked for something for a toothache," remarked the druggist. "I inquired if the tooth had a hollow." "Holler!" he exclaimed; "sure, all last night I holler like holler."

Hostess.—"And I suppose you went up the Rhine?" Affected Youth (who has been bothering the company with his traveling experiences).—"Oh, yes, and many other mountains."—London Tit-Bits.

BIG EDITION TOMORROW NIGHT

The Gazette's Review and Prosperity Edition will be issued tomorrow evening and will be brimful of interesting matter for every person in Janesville and Rock county as well as every person who ever knew of this community. The most painstaking care has been used in its compilation and preparation and neither time nor expense have been spared in gathering material for the completed work. Orders for advertising space are coming rapidly and the business interests will be well represented. Orders for extra copies are also being sent to the office and those who have delayed making their desires known in this connection should send word either to the office or to the newsstands. The paper will be delivered to all regular subscribers as usual, extra copies will be sold at 5c.

JUDGE CASSODAY
News of the death of Judge Cassoday will occasion profound sorrow throughout the state. For many years he served the people faithfully and well, on the supreme bench, combining with intelligence and moral authority, a genial personality which won the love and respect of all who knew him.

Ready to retire from active work, and enjoy much needed rest in his declining years, death found him, and out of active service, he passed on.

Judge Cassoday was an old Janesville landowner. It was here that he won his reputation as a lawyer, and developed traits of character which won for him a warm place in the hearts of the people.

It was here that he established his home, a home which soon became noted for hospitality and good cheer.

The firm of Cassoday & Merrill, in the old Lippin block, was long recognized as one of the most reliable law firms in the state, and no one was surprised when Mr. Cassoday was promoted and entered upon his long career as supreme judge.

A good man has gone, but he lived to a purpose, and the world is better because he passed through it. The record of his life is the best eulogy that can be pronounced. The fragrance of his memory will linger and be cherished by his friends, as a choice heritage.

THE GOLF CLUB

The Shinneshippi Golf club met in annual session last Friday evening and endorsed the efficiency of all officers by re-electing them for another year. The treasurer's report showed that receipts from all sources amounted to about $1800. An estimate of expenses and needed repairs and improvements for next year calls for about $2100.

The club has some 65 active members and quite a long list of honorary members. What is needed more than anything else, is more active members, and there is no reason why they should not be secured.

The game of golf outdoes all other outdoor games, because it is health-inspiring and invigorating. There is enough excitement about it to make it interesting, and it is so purely scientific that the element of chance is eliminated.

A stroll over the hills with congenial companions, relieves monotony, and comes to the man confined with indoor work as a pleasant relief.

There are plenty of men in Janesville, busily engaged in committing suicide by burning the candle at both ends, who might prolong life ten years or more, by cultivating the habit of play, and no better field is offered than enrollment as active members on the books of the Shinneshippi Golf club.

The links are as free as can be found anywhere, and the associations most enjoyable. It is a place where old men renew their youth and where the infirmities of advancing years are lost in the game of modern shilly.

The golf grounds are a credit to the city, and the club is entitled to much credit. Every encouragement should be offered and substantial aid furnished by enrollment as active members. The benefits will be mutual, with a large balance in favor of the individual.

TARIFF ON WOOD PULP

In spite of the President's efforts to have the tariff removed on wood pulp, it is extremely doubtful if the present congress takes action in the matter. There are two arguments against it: First, it would result in opening up the entire question of tariff revision, and second, it would fail to accomplish desired results; namely, a reduction in the price of paper.

The publishers of the country may as well face the problem of advanced cost squarely, and meet it intelligently, for they are not likely to receive aid from Washington.

The extravagant waste of paper, on the part of the metropolitan press, has long been cause for comment. The claim is made that competition compels all sorts of features, demanding Sunday editions of from 61 to 80 pages.

The American Review of Reviews, in commenting on this feature, says: "He would be a bold reformer indeed who obstructs the path of economic progress by deliberately advocating reduction in the size of American newspapers and periodicals, but if the figures and assertions of the forest experts of the federal government are correct, and if no other satisfactory raw material for paper is discovered, the new future will compel the paper and publishing industries, willing or unwilling, to adjust themselves to entirely new conditions."

"Whatever the present opinion of publishers may be concerning the necessity or wisdom of a great number of pages per issue, thoughtful and intelligent persons generally find the bulk of modern publications, especially of Sunday newspapers, a source of continual annoyance.

"The huge comic picture supplements are often so puerile that they induce a sense of melancholy; yet merely to divert thoughtless men and women for a brief Sunday morning hour with impossible and extravagant pictures, printed in loud colors, thousands of stately spruce and homely trees upon the northern hills, which have raised their graceful branches to the sunshine and rain of many changing seasons, have lived—in vain."

This is a wholesome criticism, for the modern Sunday newspaper is a burlesque, and so regarded by many intelligent readers. Half the white paper could be saved to advantage and the reading public better satisfied.

Another rat-hole, equally extravagant, is found in the thousands of papers sent out without orders, and for which no money is ever received, the sole object being to swell circulation statements.

It is a good time for the publishers to get down to business and adopt business principles. A paper that is worth publishing will find a constituency. The 25-cent weekly and dollar daily are not necessities, neither are the bulky Sunday editions, and the answer they champion from the field the better it will be for the public and counting room.

The advance on print paper has come to stay, and it is more legitimate than many publishers believe. Adjust business to meet new conditions and there will be no trouble with the profits.

Kentucky has 253 distilleries with only 14 wet counties in the state, while Tennessee is dry, outside of the larger cities. There will be a good many whiskey shops on the bargain counter, during the next 12 months.

At Champlains, Illinois, forty saloons were closed out, last week. Thus the tidal wave of temperance reform goes on to the credit of the nation.

The Chicago press is hard up for news when it sends out a staff of special correspondents to investigate or plain a case of suicide as ever happened. This is the sort of stuff that sensational journalism thrives upon and Janesville is being well advertised as a crime center.

For the first time in 12 years, the republican party is confronted with a contest for a "presidential nominee." The nation has never had but three or four great men in the White House, and from the present outlook history is likely to repeat itself in 1908.

The banking system of France, which serves the nation so admirably, is being studied by American financiers, with a good deal of interest. It possesses the stability of age and a long and successful career.

The parade of 1907 will go down in history as the most unique of any that has ever occurred, and future generations will marvel at the stupidity which caused it.

The busiest men in the country today are the politicians, and many of them are rattling around like a pen in a dishpan.

Profit-sharing is all right, when times are good, but loss sharing is a different proposition, and is usually a one-sided affair.

A "white Christmas," and good old-fashioned winter gives promises of an early spring and beautiful harvest.

Think This Over

There are lots of people in the city who are wearing crowns in their mouths for which they have paid an even ten dollars each.

That's all right if one couldn't do better, but when you stop to think that for exactly half that amount you may now get exactly the same work by choosing Dr. Richards for your Dentistry.

It becomes a matter of simple justice to your own purse to think twice before you repeat the offense.

There are dentists in Chicago who charge $35.00 an hour for their time. And there are others—just as good operators—that do not get half that fee.

It's all in the nerve of the dentist how much he makes you pay him for his services.

Dr. Richards has built his present large practice upon the theory that the best work coupled with reasonable prices will win out in the end.

Dr. Richards says:

"If you can show me a single point of superiority of these $10 crowns over my $5 crowns I would be glad to know it. I am willing to be convinced. But I declare to you, I have compared them day after day as I see them in my patients' mouths. And I know what I am talking about."

It makes no difference whether you pay $10 or $50.

You get the same crown.

Consult Dr. Richards and save your hard-earned money.

WHO KILLED MRS. MAUDE CLAYTON?

AUTOPSY SHOWS NO POISON IN STOMACH OF DEAD WOMAN.

DID NOT DIE BY DROWNING

Drs. Edden and Gibson United in Saying She Could Not Have Drowned and Inquest Adjourns Until Friday.

Who killed Mrs. Clayton?

Evidence secured today shows she did not die by drowning.

Chief Deputy Coroner who did not jump over the Court street bridge, examination of stomach shows no trace of poison.

Inquest adjourns until Friday.

How Mrs. Clayton met death will not be known until Friday next when the jury convenes again, an adjournment having been taken this afternoon until that date to permit of the result of Prof. E. G. Smith's analysis of the stomach of the dead woman to be completed.

All evidence thus far presented proves conclusively that the woman did not die by drowning and that she did not jump from the Court street bridge as was first suspected.

Testimony was also brought out showing that she was a hysterical, jealous woman, had twice before attempted suicide and had also suggested the possibility of such a step frequently. It is evident that the coroner believed she was murdered, by whom is the question. Thus far all theories advanced have not proved fruitful and it is merely suggestions for future development that have been made.

No Poison

Professor E. G. Smith of Beloit college has notified Drs. Edden and Gibson that he has made a complete and exhaustive analysis of Mrs. Clayton's stomach and has found no trace of any poison.

He, however, asked if she was addicted to the use of cocaine, which may be taken that he expects to find traces of this drug when he makes his minute examination.

This report is a practically ends the theory that the woman was under the influence of drugs and wandered to the river and fell down in the position the body was discovered on Friday last. A theory has been advanced that she was killed by a thrust of a knife following a quarrel and that the wounds so produced were obliterated by the knowledge of the rats or insects that destroyed the face and head.

No Food

The fact that Mr. Clayton testified that his wife had eaten largely of chicken the night of her disappearance and the finding of no food at all in her stomach leads to the belief that the time of her death was some hours later than eight o'clock as at first thought. While this is not important it adds to the mystery of the case.

The woman was also dressed in her best clothes when she left the Jackman boardinghouse and her hat and pocketbook containing money and possibly the letter which Clayton says she received from a theatrical paper, are still missing. Clayton's fear she would leave him if a good theatrical opening came made him think she showed him the letter when it came and he thinks that she received it and failed to show it to him.

Clayton Tells Story

This morning Frederick Clayton told the story of his life. He began with his birth in Butte, Montana, his leaving home when fifteen and tracing it down through his life as a traveling salesman, as boy with a circus, carnival company, and dramatic ventures he had made. He told of his parents' removal from Butte to Wisconsin, where they both died. He also gave a thirty-seven. His story was straightforward and when he touched upon his meeting and connections with his wife he became considerably embarrassed.

Known Two Weeks

He had known Madeline (Dell) but two weeks, meeting her at the Richmond hotel on Clark street last February while both were out of work. The courtship was brief and they were married at St. Joseph, Mo. He told where they lived on LaSalle Avenue, Chicago, and how he sought for the trials of his trade, which he then of their trips to small towns, naming them in order, how she worked with him and even worked alone. He told of their time spent in Beloit in October just previous to coming here, where she was the one to tell the fortunes while he assailed.

Religious Fanatic

Clayton dwelt upon a religious fanatic who lived at the same house in Beloit they did, who had considerably impressed his wife and of whom she expressed fear, but did not think this man had anything to do with her disappearance. He told of four nights when after a quarrel over some trivial affair she had attempted to leave him and how he had followed her to the depot and begged her to return. He told of jealousy of him and recited an incident of placing shirts all over a bed which was in his room at Mrs. Graham's, and telling him not to touch them, and how when she found them disturbed how excited she became. He also said the children of the Congregational church affected her strangely and broke down and cried when closely questioned as to her peculiar actions.

Mrs. Hayes Talks

Mrs. Hayes, an aunt of the girl, was also questioned by the district attorney. She told of the family not knowing that Mrs. Clayton was married until some time after the event occurred. She also said that the family had not met Mr. Clayton until he came to announce her disappearance in December. She knew of no estate the girl was heir to nor of any previous love affairs or that she had life insurance. She could ascribe no cause for murder or for suicide.

Told of Search

Clayton told of his search for his wife, starting the night she disappeared and also of his visit to Beloit, Freeport and Chicago and his telephone messages to other places where she might have gone. He denied having told the Chicago papers that his wife had disappeared while on a visit to Janesville friends, although this fact was published by several papers at the time of her mysterious disappearance.

This afternoon Mrs. McKay was placed on the stand and told of her daughter's life and habits. She stated that she had no insurance and was not heir to any estate. Mrs. Kemp of Beloit, who is landlady of the Savoy house where the couple stopped, stated that she was hysterical at times and also that she did the work while in Beloit.

Did Not Drown

Drs. Edden and Gibson were called and both testified that an examination of the lungs showed that Mrs. Clayton did not die from drowning. That her lungs were in normal condition and floated in water—a sure test. Clayton also appeared again, but merely to state that he had wanted his mother-in-law to live with them so his wife would have a companion, but that she could not.

Mrs. Jackman

Mrs. Jackman, at whose home they stopped while in the city, said she did not see Mrs. Clayton after two-fifteen in the afternoon, but heard her crying later in the afternoon and appearing hysterical. Her son, however, saw her about eight-thirty leave the front steps. The hearing then adjourned until Friday at nine to permit a complete report from Prof. Smith of his analysis of the woman's stomach.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAN TO HAVE A FREE LECTURE

John P. Doherty of La Crosse is to speak here on January 7.

The Knights of Columbus of this city have secured the services of Hon. John P. Doherty of La Crosse for a popular lecture to be given on January 7th, 1908. This speaker is a successful lawyer and a man who has rare ability as a platform speaker.

The local council has decided to make this lecture of public nature and extends a most cordial invitation to the citizens of Janesville, in confidence that there is a real treat in store for those who may attend. The lecture is complimentary, no charge of any kind being made. It is hoped that this talented man will be met by a large and representative gathering of Janesville people.

THAW'S DEFENSE TO BE SAME AS BEFORE

SECOND TRIAL OF WHITE'S SLAY-ER BEGINS JANUARY 5.

WIFE TO REPEAT STORY

Plan Will Be Legal Insanity at Time of Killing, and "Unwritten Law" Won't Be Invoked.

New York, Dec. 30.—Monday of next week Harry K. Thaw will be called a second time before a jury to make his defense to the charge of having murdered Stanford White. There have been several postponements of the date of the second hearing of this noted case, but it is said now there will be no further delay.

It is announced that Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the defendant, is expected in the city next Saturday. Other members of the family circle, including Mrs. George Carnegie, Harry Thaw's sister, and Joseph and Edward Thaw, his brothers, are also expected to reach the city during the week and will remain through the trial. The Countess of Yarnmouth, the defendant's sister, is at present in England and is not expected to attend the second trial. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has been a daily visitor at the Tomb since the first Thaw jury disassembled, will of course be one of the first arrivals in the courtroom on Monday next.

Defense Will Be Unchanged.

There have been many rumors as to the plans of the defense for the second hearing of the case and it has been predicted that an entirely new line of action might be followed. It can be authoritatively stated, however, that the defense will again be the same, that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will again relate her story to the jury and that an imposing array of expert alienists will again undertake to establish the theory that Thaw was insane at the time he killed Stanford White in the Madison Square roof garden, but has so far recovered his mental balance since that time as to be no longer a menace to the community and therefore is entitled to freedom.

This theory was expounded at length during the first trial, but after the taking of much expert testimony, and after a lunacy commission had declared Thaw sane at the present time, the plea of temporary insanity was practically abandoned. In the summing up speech of Dolphus M. DeLmas, the California attorney, who made an almost direct appeal to the so-called "unwritten law."

Will Avoid Former Mistakes.

In the coming trial, it is declared, there will be no mention made of a higher or unwritten law, but the defense will adhere strictly to a plea of legal insanity at the time the act was committed. There were mistakes made at the first trial which it will be the attempt of Thaw's attorneys to avoid during his second hearing. In the expert testimony, for instance, they have been able to separate the wheat from the chaff, and will offer only that which proved most effective before. And having once felt the sting of District Attorney Jerome's skillful cross-examination on all phases of diseases affecting the brain, several of the Thaw experts will be in a much more secure position than they were at the first trial, when the prosecuting officer's wonderful knowledge of medicine fairly amazed and in one case completely dumfounded a witness.

Evelyn Must Repeat Story.

Evelyn Thaw, it has been variously reported, would and would not take the stand in defense of her husband. There is no longer any doubt that she will do so. Without her testimony it would be difficult for the defense to predicate a plea of insanity. During the first trial the entire structure of mental derangement rested upon the story of her alleged mistreatment at the hands of Stanford White, told by her to Thaw one night in Paris, when he had asked her to become his wife. It was after he had heard this narrative that Thaw wrote the queer letters which were introduced in evidence; afterward that he made his will, with its provision of a fund for the punishment of persons responsible for vice; afterward he went to his home in Pittsburg and acted so strangely that his mother was alarmed, and afterward that he shot and killed the man his wife had accused.

Without Evelyn Nesbit's story as the meying cause for the insanity which spent its fury in the death of Stanford White on the gaily lighted, crowded summer roof garden, Harry Thaw's plea for immunity from punishment would have but little left to stand upon.

Evelyn Thaw again will be the storm center of the trial, and next in importance to her story will be the testimony of several alienists who testified before.

Martha W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, will act as leading counsel. He will have the assistance of Daniel O'Leary and A. Russell Peabody, both of whom went through the first trial.

BATTLESHIP FLEET SAILS FOR BRAZIL

PORT OF SPAIN BIDS AMERICANS A HEARTY FAREWELL.

BAY ALIVE WITH CRAFT

Admiral Evans Expected to Reach Rio Janeiro Friday Evening, January 10—Collier Awaits Him There.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 30.—The American battleship fleet weighed anchor at four o'clock Sunday afternoon and steamed for Rio Janeiro. Accompanying the fleet were the supply ships Culgoa and Glacier.

Long before the hour set a myriad of small craft, chiefly launches and steam yachts, moved up and down along the lines of anchored warships, the merry parties aboard shouting farewell to the departing visitors. Thousands of residents climbed the surrounding hills to view the great white ships as they moved outward on their journey of 3,000 miles and more, while boat loads of excursionists went to the small islands in the gulf and others to the floating dock to catch the last glimpse of the ships that were so royally welcomed to this port almost a week ago.

Makes Fine Appearance.

The fleet presented a magnificent appearance as it steamed out in four columns, with the supply ships trailing a distance of 400 yards separating one division from another. With the Connecticut in the lead, the battleships headed for the /Bocas and steamed majestically through the Grand Boca and thence along the northern coast of Trinidad.

An average of from ten to 11 knots an hour will carry the fleet to the end of the second lap of the 14,000-mile journey in about 12 days, and it was announced by Admiral Evans before his departure that he expected to reach Rio Janeiro on Friday evening, January 10.

Men All Behaved Well.

The newspapers here, and the residents, are unparing in their praise of the exemplary behavior of the men, and the papers compliment Admiral Evans in the warmest terms, expressing to him and his men the best wishes of the people of Trinidad and the hope that they will soon return.

ADLER'S CUP OF WOE FULL.

New Orleans Man Is Wrecked on Coast of Honduras.

New Orleans, Dec. 30.—Almost unparalleled misfortunes have been heaped in the short space of one week upon William Adler, one of New Orleans' foremost bankers and a leading wholesale grocer of the south. The arrival of news Sunday that Mr. Adler is a shipwrecked refugee at Belize, British Honduras, added several new misfortunes to a record already big.

One week ago Mr. Adler's resignation as president of the State National bank shook New Orleans' financial circles. Since then the bank has announced that it must go out of business; Mr. Adler's wholesale grocery firm, one of the largest in the south, has gone into the hands of a receiver; a load of groceries consigned to Honduras, which Mr. Adler's friends claimed was one of his last hopes of recuperating his fortunes, has been lost by shipwreck, and the steamer Alps, carrying both the groceries and Mr. Adler, and owned by Mr. Adler, is a total loss by the same wreck. By the merest slip of chance the insurance policy on the shipload of groceries was rendered worthless by failure of premium payment before the wreck.

One of Mr. Adler's closest friends, Moses Schwartz, a prominent New Orleans merchant, was with Mr. Adler on the Alps. His friends here went into receivership shortly after the steamer sailed.

MISS KINNER'S BODY FOUND.

Visitor at Michigan City Probably Perished of Cold.

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 30.—The body of Miss Emogene Kinner of Penn Yan, N. Y., who disappeared from Michigan City on December 11, was found Sunday afternoon on the bank of a creek in a wild and unfrequented place. She had taught school at Yonkers and at Nyack, N. Y. Overstudy had caused nervous prostration, and she came here a month ago to recuperate her health and to spend the winter with her cousin, Frank M. Jones, an officer of one of the leading manufacturing plants of Michigan City. It is supposed that she lost her way in the country December 11 and perished of cold.

TAKES PLACE OF BAILEY.

Culberson Elected Minority Leader of the Senate.

Washington.—Senator Culberson, of Texas, was elected minority leader of the senate at the Democratic caucus the other day. Culberson stands well with Bryan, who is understood to have indicated that if Culberson makes a success of the minority leadership he will be selected as chairman of the national committee in the next campaign.

A year ago Senator Bailey's great ability made him the overshadowing

figure on the Democratic side, and if an election had been held then no name but his would have been heard. But since then Bailey has fallen so far and so fast that the recent election makes only one more station on the way down hill, though to him it is the bitterest blow of all. The minority leadership was the object of his immediate ambition. His humiliation by his own colleague and former followers in the senate, for it is nothing less, hurts him more than anything else.

The final drop in Bailey's cup is that not only has he been cast aside, but his bitterest enemy has been chosen for the place he coveted. Culberson and Bailey are sworn foes. The animosity between them originated with Culberson. Bailey, who is the proudest and most unyielding of men, at first so far abandoned his usual scornful attitude in such cases as to make overtures to Culberson. They were rejected, and from that time the war between them was relentless.

Culberson's friends warned him against making a fight on the dominating Democrat of Washington and urged him to accept the olive branch; but Culberson's thin lips only whitened as he listened—a trick of theirs, which his friends know well—and he made no answer. So the war went on which ended in triumph for Culberson.

GREATEST INLAND HARBOR

WORK IN PITTSBURG DISTRICT IS NEARLY COMPLETED.

Immense System of Dams and Locks That Means Much to River Commerce.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 30.—Within a few days the large river interests of the Pittsburg district will have use of the greatest inland harbor in the world. Only two or three days' work remains to complete the system of locks and dams built on the upper Ohio river between Pittsburg and the mouth of the Beaver river at Beaver, and by the time the low water season comes the entire chain of six dams will be ready for full operation.

The harbor of Pittsburg, which has heretofore been confined between Davis Island and lock No. 1, on the Monongahela river, will be extended to Merrill, or dam No. 6, on the Ohio river, a distance of over 20 miles from Pittsburg. This will enable river shippers to take millions of bushels of coal that much nearer to market, to wait for freights to move coal and other products to southern ports.

It is estimated that the tonnage of the Upper Ohio for 1907 will exceed 4,000,000 tons. This vast commerce has been moved only by the aid of nature. Most of this tonnage has been held in the pools of the Monongahela or in the Pittsburg harbor proper, waiting at intervals for enough water to enable it to be shipped. Next spring coal operators will be in position to transport the coal to pool No. 6, thus taking the fuel for southern use over the worst portion of the Ohio river, which will materially aid in making up fleets to move them southward.

The improvement has cost the government close to $5,000,000, but property valuations along that portion of the stream which has been improved have been greatly increased. Many manufacturers have located plants along the banks of the river because of the harbor facilities that will be afforded and the assurance that their works can be supplied the year round by fuel moved by water.

Hippodrome Said to Be Finest Outside of New York City.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 30.—The Hippodrome, said to be the largest and most beautiful playhouse in the United States, outside of New York city, will be opened Monday night. It cost $2,000,000 and probably is the most modern theater in the world. It will seat 4,500 persons.

The stage floor is in sections, operated by hydraulic lifts. Beneath the stage is a tank for aquatic sports, which has a capacity of 455,000 gallons. The drop curtain weighs 13 tons and is built of steel and concrete, is absolutely fireproof, and completely shuts the stage off from the body of the house. No posts or pillars obstruct the view of the stage from any seat in the house. Twenty girls in uniform will act as ushers.

Morgan Buys Biron Monuments.

New York, Dec. 30.—One of the most famous art treasures of France, the Biron monuments, have been bought by J. Pierpont Morgan, and now repose in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. News of the purchase became known Sunday. The monuments were erected by Pons de Contant, knight and follower of Charles VIII, in the chapel of the Chateau de Biron at the end of the fifteenth century.

Lad Kills Mother by Accident.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Dec. 30.—Mrs. George Hoenesht, of Stroudsburg, was accidentally shot and killed here Sunday by her eight-year-old son, Lewis. Mrs. Hoenesht was talking to a friend over the telephone when her son, who had previously been shooting at a mark with a Florent rifle, pointed the weapon at her and pulled the trigger.

Posta Destroy Tobacco.

Tobacco dealers in India are greatly troubled by a moth or fly that finds its way into a box of cigars or tobacco and lays an egg that soon develops into a destructive worm or grub, which bores through the wrapper into the body of the cigar and ruins it. Hardly anything will keep these pests out except to incense each cigar in a bottle or wrap it in heavy tinfoil.

Intemperance Actor's Ban.

Edmund Kean, who revived the fortunes of Drury Lane and wrung from Coleridge the appreciative comment that to see him act was like reading Shakespeare by lightning, never drank before a performance. He did little else after one. His intemperance ruined his family and made it necessary for his son Charles, to quit school and become an actor, a change for which young Kean had no liking.

Master's Gentle Hint.

The story goes that a pretty young lady once played in class a ballad by Chopin in a very amateurish way. Last walked up and down the room excitedly murmuring: "Hilgior Hilgior Hilgior Hilgior" (the equivalent, apparently, of "Great Scott!") But when she had finished she went up to her in a most friendly manner, laid his hand upon her head as if in benediction, and said, gently: "My dear child, marry soon. Good-by!"

Exclude Air from Fire.

The first object in the event of fire is to keep out air, without which fire cannot burn. Therefore if a room be alight close the windows if possible, and most certainly the door, to stop the feed of air and send for the fire engine.

"What time is it?" she asked irrelevantly.

He glanced at his watch. She turned her eyes toward the level sun, conscious and a little conscience-stricken that it was too late for her to drive to Black Hills Crossing unless she started at once.

It grew stiller. The wind went down with the sun.

Doubtless he had forgotten to tell her the time. She had almost forgotten that she had asked him. With the silence of sunset a languor, the indolence of content, crept over her. She saw him close his watch with the absent-minded air which she already associated with him, and she let the question go from sheer disinclination for the effort of repetition—let the projected drive go—acquiescent, content that matters shape themselves without any interference from her. The sense of ease, of physical well-being, invaded her with an agreeable relaxation as though tension somewhere had slackened.

The conversation drifted idly. Sometimes he stirred her to amusement, even a hushed laughter. Sometimes she smilingly agreed with his views. Sometimes she let them go unheeded, or intent on her own ideas, shook her small head in amused disapproval.

The stillness over all, the deepening mellow light, the blessed indolence of the young world and their few years in it—youth—that was perhaps the key to it all, after all.

"Tomorrow," she mused aloud, knees cradled in her clasped fingers—"tomorrow they'll shoot, with great circumstance and fuss, a few native woodcock—there's no light yet from the north—a few grouse, a few quail, a few ducks or two. Others will drive motor cars over bad roads. Others will ride, sail, golf—anything to kill the eternal enemy. You know the majority of the people here or coming, don't you?"

"Who are they?"

She began, "The Leroy Mortimers?"

"Oh, yes."

"Lord Alderdene and Captain Voucher and the Page twins and Marlon?"

"Yes."

"Then Bismarck, the Tassel girl, Agatha Callinnes, Mrs. Vandenberg, all sorts, all sorts." And, with an effort, "If I'm to drive I should like to know what time it is."

He informed her, and she, too, indolent to pretend surprise and finding reproach easier, told him that he had no business to torment her for forget.

His smiling serenity, under the rubicund arousal in her a slight resentment, as though he had taken something for granted.

Besides, she had grown weary. She had wired Quarrier, saying she would meet him and drive him over. He had replied at once, naming his train. He was an exact man and expected method and precision in others. She didn't exactly know how it might affect him if his reasonable demand was unsatisfied. She did not know him very well yet.

And, thinking of him now, she again made up her mind to give him the answer which he now had every reason to expect from her. This decision appeared to lubricate her conscience. It ran more smoothly now, emitting fewer creaks.

"You say that you know Mr. Quarrier?" she began thoughtfully.

"Not well."

"I hope you will like him, Mr. Steward."

"I do not think he likes me, Miss Landis. He has reasons not to."

She looked up, suddenly remembering: "Oh—since that scrape? What has Mr. Quarrier to do?" She did not finish the sentence. A troubled silence followed. She was trying to remember the details—something she had paid small attention to at the time; something so foreign to her, so distant from her comprehension, that it had not touched her closely enough for her to remember exactly what this young man might have done to forfeit the good will of Howard Quarrier.

She looked at Steward. It was impossible that anything very bad could come from such a man. And, pursuing her reasoning aloud: "It couldn't have been very awful," she argued; "something foolish about an actress, was it not? And that could not concern Mr. Quarrier."

"I thought you did know; I thought you remembered—while you were driving me over from the station—that I was dropped from my club."

She flushed up. "Oh, but what had Mr. Quarrier to do with that?"

"He is a governor of that club."

"You mean that Mr. Quarrier had you dropped?"

"What else could he do? A man who is idiot enough to risk making his own club notorious must take the consequences, and they say I took that risk. Therefore Mr. Quarrier, Major Belwether—all the governors did their duty. I—I naturally concluded that no governor of the Patroness club feels very kindly toward me."

Miss Landis sat very still, her small head bent, a flush still brightening her fair face.

She recalled a few of the details now—the scandal—something of the story. Which particular actress it was she could not remember, but some man who had dined too freely had made the vulgar, and this boy sitting beside her had accepted it and won by bringing into the sacred precincts of the Patroness club a foolish girl disguised in a man's evening dress.

That was bad enough. That somebody promptly discovered it was worse, but worst of all was the publicity, the club's name smirched, the young man expelled from one of the best two clubs in the metropolis.

To read of such things in the columns of a daily paper had meant little to her except to repel her. To hear it mentioned among people of her own sort had left her incensed and indignant, but now she saw it in a new light, with the young man who had figured in it seated beside her. Did such men as he—such attractive, well bred, amusing men as he—do that sort of thing?

"Is that the kind of man you are, Mr. Steward?" she said impulsively.

"It appears that I am, I don't know what I am or may be."

"The pity of it!" she said, still away.

ed by impulse. "Why did you do it?"

didn't you know—realize what you were doing—bringing discredit on your own club?"

"I was in no condition to know, Miss Landis."

"The crude brutality of the expression might merely have hurt or disgusted her had she been less intelligent, nor, as it was, did she fully understand why he chose to use it—less that he meant it in self punishment."

"It's rather shameful," she said hotly.

"Yes," he assented; "it's a bad beginning."

"A beginning! Do you mean to go on?"

He did not reply. His head was partly turned from her. She sat silent for awhile. The dog had returned to its place at Steward's feet, his brown eyes fixed on Steward's face, his head turned toward his friend, and the man, without turning his eyes, dropped one hand on the dog's head, caressing the silky ears.

Some sentimentalist had once said that no man who cared for animals could be wholly bad. Inexperience inclined her to believe it. Then, too, she had that inclination for overlooking offenses committed against precept which appears to be one of those edifying human frailties peculiar to neither sex and common to both. Besides, her knowledge of such matters was as vague as her mind was kindly and body wholesome. Men who dined in restaurants were not remarkable for their rarity. The nervous habit, being incomprehensible to her, meant nothing, and she said innocently: "It is not for such things that we drop men, Mr. Steward. You know that, of course."

"For what do you drop men?"

"For falsehood, deception, any dishonesty."

"And you don't drop a man when you read in the papers that one of the best two clubs in town has expelled him?"

She gave him a troubled glance, and, naively, "But you are still a member of the other, are you not? Then, hardening, "It was common, common, thoroughly disgraceful and incomprehensible." And with every word uttered insensibly warming in her heart toward him whom she was chastening: "It was not even bad. It was worse than being stupidly bad. It was stupid!"

He nodded, one hand slowly caressing the dog's head where it lay across his knees.

She watched him a moment, hesitated, then, smiling a little, "So now I know the worst about you, do I not?" she concluded.

He did not answer. She waited, the smile still curving her red mouth. Had she been too severe? she wondered. "You may help me to my foot," she said sweetly. She was very young.

He rose at once, holding out his hands to aid her in that pleasantly impersonal manner so suited to him, and now they stood together in the purple dusk of the uplands—two people young enough to take one another seriously.

They walked for awhile, subdued, soberly picking their path through the dusk. After a few moments she began to feel doubtful, a little uneasy, partly from a reaction which was natural, partly because she was not at all sure whether she thought of the terms she was already on with Steward. Suppose they objected? She had never thwarted either of these gentlemen. Besides, she already had a temporary interest in Steward—the interest that women always cherish, quite unconsciously, for the man whose shortcomings they have consented to overlook.

As they crossed the headland through the deepening dusk the acetylene lamps on a cluster of motor cars spread a blinding light across the scrub. The windows of Shotover House were brilliantly illuminated.

"Our shooting party has returned," she said.

They crossed the drive through the white glare of the motor lamps. People were passing—grooms with dogs and guns and fluffy bunches of game birds; several women in motor costumes, veils aloft; a man or two in shooting tweeds or khaki.

As they entered the hall together she turned to him, an indelible smile curving her lips; then, with a little nod, friendly and sweet, she left him standing at the open door of the gun-

CHAPTER THREE

THE first person he encountered in the gunroom was Quarrier, who favored him with an expressionless stare, then with a bow, quite perfunctory and noncommittal. It was plain enough that he had not expected to meet Steward at Shotover House.

Kemp Ferrall, a dark, stocky, active man of forty, was in the act of draining a glass when through the bottom he caught sight of Steward. He flushed in a gulp and advanced, one muscular hand outstretched. "Hello, Steward! Heard you'd arrived, tried the Scotch and bottled with Sylvia Landis. That's all right, too, but you should have come for the opening day. Lots of native woodcock—oh, Blinky?" turning to Lord Alderdene, and again to Steward, "You know all these fellows—Mortimer yonder?"

There was the slightest ring in his voice, and Leroy Mortimer, red necked, bulky and heavy eyed, emptied his glass and came over, followed by Lord Alderdene, blinking madly through his shooting goggles and showing all his teeth like a pointer with a tick. Captain Voucher, a gentleman with the vivid coloring of a healthy groom on a cold day, came up, followed by the Page boys, Willis and Gordon, who shook hands shyly, unaccustomed to be on easy terms with the notorious Mr. Steward. And, last of all, Tom O'Hara arrived, reeking of the saddle and clinking a pair of troopers' spurs over the floor—rules of his bloodless Porto Rico campaign with Squadron A.

It was patent to every man present that the Kemp Ferralls had determined to ignore Steward's recent foolishness, which indicated that he might reasonably expect the continued good will of several sets the orbits of which intersected in the social system of his native city. Indeed, the few qualified to watch him cared nothing about the matter, and it was not likely that anybody else would take the initiative in being disagreeable to a young man the fortunes and misfortunes of whose rise were part of the history of Manhattan Island. Steward, good or bad, was a matter of course in New York.

So everybody in the gunroom was civil enough, and he chose Scotch and found a seat beside Alderdene, who sat billing at a smoky pipe and flinging a tumbler of smoldering Scotch, blinking away like mad through his shooting goggles at everybody.

"These little brown snakes you call woodcock," he began—"we bagged nine brace, d'you see?"

Slipping his arm through the pivot sleeve of Lord Alderdene's shooting jacket, hooking the other in Steward's reluctant elbow and driving Mortimer ahead of him, Major Belwether went gallantly away up the stairs, his lordship's bandy little legs trotting beside him, the soaking gutters and shoes slopping at every step.

Steward turned off down his corridor, unaware that the Sagamore pup was following close at his heels until he heard Quarrier's even, colorless voice, "Ferrall, would you be good enough to send Sagamore to your kennel?"

"Oh, he's your dog? I forgot," said Steward, turning around.

Quarrier looked at him, pausing a moment.

"Yes," he said coldly; "he's my dog."

For a fraction of a second the two men's eyes encountered; then Steward glanced at the dog and turned on his heel with the slightest shrug, and that is all there was to the incident—an anxious, perplexed puppy lagged off by a servant, turning, jerking, twisting, reeking, looking pleadingly back at his unwilling feet and over the polished floor.

Steward walked on alone through the long eastern wing to his room overlooking the sea. He sat down on the edge of his bed, glancing at the clothing laid out for him. He felt tired and disinclined for the exertion of undressing. The shades were up. Night quicksilvered the window panes so that they were like a dark mirror reflecting his face. He inspected his darkened features curiously. The blurred and somber tinted visage returned the stare.

"Not a man at all—the shadow of a man," he said aloud, "with no will, no courage, always putting off the battle, always avoiding conclusions, always skulking. What chance is there for a man like that?"

As one who raises a glass to drink who and unexpectedly finds water, he shrugged his shoulders disgustedly and got up. A bath followed. He dressed, leisurely and was pacing the room, fussing with his collar, when Ferrall knocked and entered, finding a seat on the bed.

"Stephen," he said bluntly, "I have not seen you since that break of yours at the club."

"Botton, wasn't it?" commented Steward, tying his tie.

"Perfectly. Of course it doesn't make any difference to Grace or to me; but I fancy you've already heard from it."

"Oh, yes. All I care about is how my mother took it."

"Of course she was cut up, I suppose?"

"Yes. You know how she would look at a thing of that sort—not that any of the nine and seventy jarring sets would care, but those few thousands invading the edges, butting in, half or three-quarters inside, are the people who can't afford to overlook the victim of a fashionable club's displeasure—those and a woman like my mother and several other decent minded people who happen to count in town."

Ferrall, his legs swinging busily, thought again, then, "Who was the novelty back rabbit."

"How do you do, Mr. Belwether?" said Steward in a low voice without offering his hand.

Then Major Belwether saw him, bless you—yes, indeed! And, though Steward continued not to offer his hand, Major Belwether meant to have it, bless your heart, and he fussed and fussed and benned cordially until he secured it in his plump white fingers and pressed it enthusiastically.

There was something about his soft warm hands which had always reminded Steward of the temperature and texture of a newly hatched bird. It had been some time since he had shaken hands with Major Belwether. It was apparent that the bird had not aged any.

Slipping his arm through the pivot sleeve of Lord Alderdene's shooting jacket, hooking the other in Steward's reluctant elbow and driving Mortimer ahead of him, Major Belwether went gallantly away up the stairs, his lordship's bandy little legs trotting beside him, the soaking gutters and shoes slopping at every step.

Must Please Women.
An English periodical says that it is women that make the success of the stage, as they are the great patrons. Where they go the men are bound to follow, and it is necessary, first of all, that a play shall succeed, to make it interesting to the women. The facts prove this to be true in this country as well.
